

CONTENTS

	pag.
List of Illustrations	xi
1. The structural characteristics of preindustrial economies	1
1.1. From the Neolithic Revolution to the Bronze Age urban revolution	1
1.2. The structural features of agrarian economies	5
1.3. Late-mediaeval economies and the impact of the Black Death	8
Bibliography	12
2. The “Great Divergence”	13
2.1. Opening closed worlds	13
2.2. The Great Divergence: causes and timing	18
2.3. Beyond Eurasia: America, Africa and Oceania	25
Bibliography	27
3. New players, new institutions	29
3.1. From south to north	29
3.2. Origins of the Little Divergence	35
3.3. On both sides of the Atlantic	40
Bibliography	43
Demographic transition	44
4. The Industrial Revolution: technology and society	47
4.1. A long-term process	47
4.2. Foreign trade, empire, mercantilism	49
4.3. Early structural transformation	51
4.4. The technological revolution: stages, sectors and innovations	53
Bibliography	61
5. Why Europe? Why Britain?	63
5.1. Why Europe? Culture, institutions, economic incentives	64
5.2. Why Britain? A peculiar combination of factors	68

	pag.
Bibliography	72
The industrial revolution	73
6. An unstoppable process	77
6.1. The dynamics of “peaceful conquest” in European industrialization	78
6.2. The universal banks	79
6.3. The state’s role in the backward countries	80
6.4. Industrialization and the reactivity of the socio-economic fabric	84
Bibliography	85
7. A new world balance	87
7.1. The Second Industrial Revolution	87
7.2. A new leading figure: big business	87
7.3. Technological change: constraints and opportunities	90
7.4. Towards a new global scenario	91
Bibliography	97
Workplace organization	98
8. The Western model and its limits	101
8.1. Tsarist Russia	101
8.2. Reform from above: Imperial Japan	104
8.3. The Meiji Restoration	106
8.4. China in the late Qing period	108
8.5. Latin America	111
Bibliography	114
Mass emigration from Europe	115
9. The first phase of globalization	121
9.1. The (first) Great Depression and neomercantilism	123
9.2. The gold standard and the City at its height	125
9.3. Imperialism	128
Bibliography	132
International monetary systems	133
10. The Great War: the end of a world	137
10.1. Interpretation of the war: discontinuity and social revolution	137
10.2. Total war: industrial planning and mobilization	141

	pag.
10.3. The geopolitical and economic consequences	149
Bibliography	152
11. The post-war years: the age of insecurity	153
11.1. The difficult return to the international monetary system	153
11.2. German hyperinflation	157
11.3. Economic expansion in the 1920s	159
11.4. The Soviet Union	164
Bibliography	168
12. The crisis of capitalism	169
12.1. The Wall Street Crash	169
12.2. The Depression	172
12.3. The Keynesian revolution	178
Bibliography	180
13. State intervention	183
13.1. The New Deal	183
13.2. Germany	187
13.3. Italy	192
13.4. The Soviet Union	194
Bibliography	198
14. The Second World War: “Creative Destruction”	199
14.1. Destruction and creation	199
14.2. War and growth	200
14.3. Investments and foreign trade	202
14.4. The sectors in war: agriculture and raw materials	204
14.5. Growth of the arms industry	205
14.6. Planning for combat	206
14.7. War and big science	207
Bibliography	210
15. Prosperity at last	211
15.1. “Greenhouse with cyclamens”	211
15.2. Europe destroyed	212
15.3. The European Recovery Program	214
15.4. Trade and international agreements	216

	pag.
15.5. Mixed economy, nationalizations and development policies	218
15.6. Miracle, miracles	219
Bibliography	221
16. Decolonization: lights and (many) shadows	223
16.1. Rich and poor	223
16.2. The nature of underdevelopment	224
16.3. Decolonization	225
16.4. Political instability	227
16.5. Asian destinies	229
Bibliography	234
17. From Keynes to neoliberalism	235
17.1. The end of Keynesian economics	235
17.2. The 1970s recession	236
17.3. Retreat of the public sector in the West	238
17.4. Privatizations in Europe	239
17.5. Why privatize, how to privatize	240
17.6. Privatization and development	242
Bibliography	245
18. Third world, “third worlds”	247
18.1. Fragmentation of the Third World	247
18.2. A legacy of the past	249
18.3. The disadvantages of the latecomers	250
18.4. Sectors and companies	251
18.5. Developmental states	253
Bibliography	256
19. The end of a great dream	257
19.1. A crisis with deep roots	257
19.2. Gorbachev’s impossible dream	260
19.3. The difficult return to the market economy	262
19.4. Towards a new State capitalism	265
Bibliography	270
20. Unstable leadership	271
20.1. Reagan’s America: reviving the economy and reducing the role of the state	271
20.2. Japan’s lost challenge	273

	pag.
20.3. The dynamic recovery of the United States	276
20.4. China in the global economy: political repression and economic reform	279
Bibliography	285
21. Europe in search of an identity	287
21.1. The end of the Cold War and German Reunification	287
21.2. The terms imposed by the Treaty of Maastricht	290
21.3. Arrival of the euro	292
21.4. The origins of the European crisis	295
Bibliography	301
22. The globalized world	303
22.1. BRICS	303
22.2. The success of the market and state intervention in Asia	307
22.3. The commodities boom and development of south-south economic relations	310
Bibliography	316
23. A different kind of crisis?	317
23.1. The origins of the financial crisis	317
23.2. Bailing out the banking systems	321
23.3. Uncertainties after the crisis	324
Bibliography	330
24. In praise of history	331
Authors	333