

TABLE OF CONTENTS

	page
Introduction	1

Chapter I ASPECTS OF BEHAVIOURAL SCIENCE IN ENVIRONMENTAL LAW

1. Distinctive characteristics of the environment and bias	13
1.1. Complexity and uncertainty	18
1.2. Multi-scalarity	26
1.3. Indivisibility	34
2. Green nudges	39
3. Neutralising bias	43
4. Exploiting bias	48
5. Empirical approach	59

Chapter II INTEGRATING REMEDIES INTO A SYSTEMIC PERSPECTIVE

1. From the trees to the woods	63
2. Combined strategies for achieving change	65
2.1. Rare's coastal fishing programme	72
2.2. Rare's regenerative agriculture programme	76
2.3. ARAs	79
2.4. Solarize	81

VIII New Paths for Environmental Law Through a Behavioural Prism

	page
2.5. Focus on the public administration	85
3. Behavioural science as a prism: the BIT Manifesto	88
Conclusions	95
Suggested reading	99